The New Jersey delegation will meet at the Select Council Chambers, City Hall, to-day, (18th inst.,) at 8½ o'clock, A. M.

The Ohio delegation will meet this morning at eight o'clock, at the Monongahela House.

Persons from each delegation are specially requested to make out and hand to the Secretaries of the Convention accurate rosters, with the Postoffice address of the respective members.

The Democratic Sheriff of Bedford county refused to comply with the law of Pennsylvania, which provides that Sheriffs shall insert in their proclamations of Elections the names of drafted deserters.

The New York State delegation will meet (forced into state,) at the Firemen's Association Rooms, in the second story of Market Hall, opposite the Republican Club Rooms, on Market street, at the hour of 8 A. M. to-day. Hon. John Cochrane is Chairman.

The Ohio Delegation has been organized this morning for organization by the choice of General Sanford, No. 169 Monongahela House. The Old Buckeye State is well represented by Generals Banks, Butler, Dennis, Sargent, Osborn and Coggeshall; Colonels Kinsman and Allen, the well-known Chaplain Quint, and others who have records of honorable service ashore, with several representatives of the State who were in the volunteer navy.

Mr. Dudley, formerly a private in the 20th Massachusetts regiment, and latterly a clerk in the Treasury Department at Washington, is the gentleman with whom the Committee now in session in this city originated. He is, moreover, Chairman of the Committee having the matters of the Convention in charge. He, in common with all other employees of the government, was refused leave of absence to come here, and was compelled to resign his place in order to attend, and that he did. It is but just to add that other gentlemen are here in like predicament.

Iron Clad Target Experiments

Fortress Monroe, September 22.—The board of Engineer officers are energetically pushing forward their experiments upon the iron clad target, near Rip Raps. Shot after shot has been delivered, and the effect of the various projectiles thrown from the different guns is carefully noted. On each shot the upper plate of the target, in nearly the same indentures made by a rifle projectile, crushing in the iron and penetrating more or less into the wood backing. Another shot, a rifled Dyer projectile, a cut six hundred and twenty pounds, struck the upper sheet of the target, and buried itself almost out of sight, amid crumbling fragments of the crushed blocks of stone. Heavy pieces of granite weighing hundreds of pounds, were thrown off by the violence of the shock, and fragments of stone were scattered over a space of several hundred yards. The effect of the various projectiles upon both sheets of iron and stone will be carefully noted by the engineer officers, and the results will be reported to the Government.

Address of the Mayor to the Boys in Blue.

In accordance with a resolution of Councils noticed elsewhere, we publish the following address issued by Mayor McCarthy last night:

MAYOR'S OFFICE, }
PITTSBURGH, September 24, 1866. }

To the Boys in Blue: The pleasant duty has been assigned me by a joint resolution of the City Councils, to extend to you a hearty welcome to the city of Pittsburgh. Words can but feebly express the gratitude the citizens of our city cherish for yourselves as well as for your dead comrades, whose bones lay scattered on many a battlefield from the Potomac to the Rio Grande. Your presence at this time among us shows that while you have laid aside the musket and the sword, it is but to take up the same gauge of battle in the more peaceable forms of an appeal to the ballot box. Assoldiers of the Republic who have faced death in every form in defense of the nation's life, I welcome you to the city of Pittsburgh, and give the assurance that every right of hospitality will be extended to you with an open hand. W. C. McCarthy,

Mayor.

Reception of Delegations.

About one o'clock yesterday afternoon, the Baltimore and Philadelphia delegations arrived at the Union Depot Hotel, where they were received by the Reception Committee and escorted to City Hall, headed by the Great Western Band. Here Gen. Pearson tendered a cordial welcome in behalf of the Resident Committee and the ladies of the city. Collis' Zouave Band, of Philadelphia, played "Hail Columbia," while the Great Western Band, of this city, responded with "Vive l'America." The Philadelphia delegation, forty in number, carried six white flags with a red cross badge in the centre. The Baltimoreans bore in their ranks a handsome red fringed banner, with the inscription: "The Ladies to the Boys in Blue."

Among the notables who came with the above delegations, were Generals Collis, Wooley, Owens, Denison, Stanton and Pierce —Capt. Dawson commanding.

During the afternoon delegations from New York, Maine, New Hampshire, Ohio, Wisconsin, Illinois, Missouri, Massachusetts and Rhode Island arrived, and were all received with due formality at City Hall, after which they were conducted to suitable quarters.

LAST EVENING.

The sweet soft strain of the bugle and the horn mingled with the soul-stirring airs of fife and drum and echoing cheers, filled the air last night until almost midnight. Here were delegations marching from the various depots amidst the enthusiastic welcome of the populace, there a knot of delegates gathered around the old veteran Collis, while Collis' Philadelphia Band made the air vocal with dulcet strains in front of our office for at least a quarter of an hour. The serenade to the Union Leagues of Philadelphia and Baltimore by the Philadelphia delegation as a compliment to our unswerving fidelity to the cause of universal freedom, in response to repeated calls, was given. Penniman appeared and addressed the delegation in a brief speech relative to the grave questions involved in the present political conflict.

FURTHER ARRIVALS.

At half past eleven o'clock General John W. Geary; General Ben. Butler; General Sprague, of Rhode Island, General Schenck, of Ohio, and General Hawkins, of New York, arrived in carriages at City Hall, and were enthusiastically received by the multitude, the latter arising to their feet en masse and cheering them from the time they entered the hall until they reached the stage, where they were formally welcomed by Col. Forney. On being introduced, General Butler spoke as follows:

My Fellow Countrymen of Pittsburgh, I would fain, believe you Pennsylvanians!—The kind feelings that this greeting fills my heart with cannot be expressed by words. I appreciate the honor of this reception, and the presence of the support vouchsafed us in the struggle we are now engaged in. I will not attempt at this late hour to discuss the grave and important questions at issue, but will defer it until to-morrow. The honor of the late conflict does not belong to me or any of my fellow officers, but to the private who, with no other inducement than honor, and the enjoyment of battle, shared the perils and privations of the field that American liberty might be perpetuated. The private who, in the battle hour, preserves the honor and gratitude of his fellow citizens above all others. (Applause.) Our enemies said that our greatest danger was in our numbers, which, on the enlistment, would fall into prodigacy and invoke anarchy; but the great army of the Union melted away like the dew before the sun, and was disposed it became good law-abiding citizens. Some people asked us what part would the army take in the future politics of the country. I answered that the army would only take an active part when the liberties of the nation were in danger and then they would be found on the side of the country. And I trust you will excuse me from any longer trespassing on your time as there are able men to come after me.

The General retired amid the cheers and hurras of the entire assemblage.

Gen. Geary, Gen. Schenck, Gen. Hawkins, Gen. Sprague, Senator Ross, of Kansas, and Hon. Simon Cameron, each made a few remarks, after each of which they were escorted to their different hotels.

The following are the delegates from New York, who will be found at the Monongahela House, to-day:

Major General J. C. Fremont, Major General Francis C. Barlow, Lieut. and Adjutant K. B. Hamilton, Lieutenant John Chichester, Colonel J. B. McKean, Paymaster A. H. Boiling, U. S. N. Colonel George D. Accidentally Killed.—Yesterday morning an accident resulting in the death of a young man named Valentine Dubbell, occurred at the Iron Factory of Messrs. Lindsey, Owens and Semple, near Woods' Run. The deceased was working about the machinery, when he accidentally got his right arm drawn between two cog wheels. His body was terribly crushed, and death ensued shortly after the accident. Coroner Clawson held an inquest yesterday afternoon and the jury returned a verdict of accidental death.

The Court House in Holiday Dress.—Sheriff Stewart has been making extended preparations to put the old Court House in proper trim for the grand celebration this evening. He has procured nearly one hundred and fifty Chinese lanterns for the purpose of illumination, and the effect of all this light distributed over the gloomy walls of the great stone mansion on the Hill, will be truly magnificent. Sheriff Stewart deserves the thanks of the people for his public spirit and enterprise in this matter.

Personal.—We had the pleasure of welcoming to our sanctum yesterday Mr. J. M. Burns, the aged Gettysburg hero, who won such rich laurels at the great battle on that bloody field. The old man, though he has numbered three score and fifty years of age, so hale and hearty is his appearance and so lightly does he carry his weight of seventy-three years. He is a delegate to the great Convention and constitutes the whole delegation. We bid him a hearty welcome.

Ladies to the Rescue!—A grand rally of the ladies of Allegheny is requested to be held at an early hour this morning at City Hall, Allegheny, for the purpose of preparing wreaths and decorations for the grand procession to-day. Let every lady attend there. The time is excessively short, and the promptest action must be taken to insure success. The ladies are always prompt in well doing and they surely will not fail now.

Serenaded.—The Philadelphia delegation of the Boys in Blue, marched last evening, accompanied by Collis' Philadelphia Brass Band to Mayor McCarthy's office, upon them the band serenaded the Mayor in splendid style, discoursing a number of airs most melodiously. The Honor responded happily and the incident, altogether, was a most pleasant one.

The Pets to Continue.—The Pets will continue with no poor success last week, will continue during the present week up to Saturday next (Wednesday) night. Entries may be made as late as to-morrow morning at 10 o'clock. Parties desiring to enter pets may be sure to be in season, as after that those entering stock will be required to pay the usual fee.

The Boys in Blue of the second ward held a meeting last evening, at Wilkins Hall, to perfect arrangements for the torch light procession to-night, and a large and enthusiastic meeting. It was resolved to meet this evening at half past five o'clock, at the Second ward school house, corner Lion and Diamond streets.

The Press.—E. A. David, Esq., the polite local correspondent of the Associated Press, and superintendent of the Pittsburgh Telegraph Company, cordially extends to the visiting members of the Press the use of his private office, Telegraph Office, corner Fifth street, Western Union Telegraph Office.

Vacation Rendered.—In the case of Daniel Greene and William Jamieson, indicted for the larceny recently, and convicted, both in the Quarter Sessions and Common Pleas, the jury yesterday returned a verdict of guilty, and the prisoners were remanded for sentence.

Second Ward Boys in Blue.—You are requested to assemble at the school house to-night at half past six o'clock, when the Torch Light Club will assemble at the same point in the Ward.

Torch-Light Procession.—The torch-lights which will be lighted, and carried by the Boys in Blue, during the procession to-night, will be sold at the usual place to-morrow (Wednesday) morning.

OUR REPORT.

The Final Preparations—Committee Meeting—The Finishing Touches—Decorations, &c.

The closing preparations for the grand demonstration commencing to-day—the grandest demonstration ever made in this country—were made yesterday, and are of a character befitting to the great occasion. Everybody was on the alert, and all seemed pleased, and excitement and jubilation were the order of the day. The streets echoed all day with music, and every portion of the city was gay with flags and decorations. Every body was active in preparing fitting decorations to welcome the boys from abroad, our eyes on the watch for the celebrities hourly arriving. The enthusiasm was delightful, and gave rich promise for a fair opening of the ceremonies of to-day. In short, the Fourth of July had apparently slipped into the wrong part of the year.

At eleven o'clock in the morning the Resident Committee assembled, with Gen. Negley in the Chair.

It was reported that the Mayors of the five cities would furnish all police required; Mayor Morrison would have a sufficient force on the ferries, and Mayor McCarthy would provide fifty police for the procession to-night, and also a sufficient number for City Hall during the Convention.

On motion, a Committee was appointed to get up a suitable recognition of the services of the patriotic ladies who decorated the hall. Colonel Forney, Colonel T. M. Bayne and Sergeant John H. Ely were the committee appointed. It was reported that one thousand cards containing programmes had been printed.

The Committee on Carriages and Horses reported that all the carriages and horses necessary had been engaged.

On motion of Sergeant Gray, the National Executive Committee of the Soldiers and Sailors' Union, of Washington, D. C., were assigned to the conspicuous position in the grand demonstration.

The thanks of the committee were tendered to Mrs. Hay, for the use of the flags.

A joint meeting of the National Union Executive Committee and the Resident Committee of this city, was held last evening in the committee room, over the stage of City Hall, for the purpose of deliberating upon the programme for to-day. In the absence of Colonel Bodly, Chairman of the National Union Executive Committee, Major General Negley was unanimously called to the chair. The whole discussion was had as to the business to be done to-day, when the meeting adjourned to the Water Committee room of the City Building, where more space could be found.

The following resolutions were adopted:

Resolved, That the delegation from each State be requested to appoint two Vice Presidents, two Secretaries and two delegates, as a Committee on Resolutions. The names of the persons so appointed to be handed to the persons in charge of the Committee.

Resolved, That the District of Columbia be entitled to the same representation as any of the States.

After some discussion as the appointment of a Committee on Temporary Organization, the following resolution was adopted:

Resolved, That the delegates meet the different States in the Committee Room, one of their number to meet in the City Building this (Tuesday) morning at half-past nine o'clock, for the purpose of appointing a committee on temporary organization.

The meeting then adjourned.

We republish for the convenience of those who have not preserved it, the programme of arrangements for the procession, and the line of march of the grand torchlight procession of this evening. Commencing with this morning the order of exercises will be as follows:

The Committee having stupendous arrangements have been made. The fire department will be well represented, and other societies will turn out largely. The Geary Blues, and all the members of the Geary Clubs will be as the leaves of the forest, and Chinese Lantern will twinkle everywhere among brigat transparencies and floral devices.

By reference to our advertising columns our readers will find the names of the Marshal and his Aids, and the time and place for other societies to participate. The following is the line of march to be observed:

Up Water [illegible]head, along Smithfield to Third, up Third to Pennsylvania avenue to Fifth avenue, up Fifth to Ross, along Ross to Forbes, down Forbes to Fifth, along Fifth to Market, up Market to St. Clair, along St. Clair to Sandusky Bridge, up Federal to Robinson, up Robinson to Ohio, along Ohio to Cedar avenue, up Cedar avenue to Ohio, along Ohio to Federal, up Federal to Commons, along Commons to Beaver, down Beaver to Ohio, along Ohio to Federal, down Federal to Bridge, up St. Clair to Penn, up Penn to Wayne, up Wayne to Liberty, along Liberty to Smithfield, along Smithfield to Water, and dismiss.

DECORATIONS—EVERY WHERE.

The two cities blossomed as the rose yesterday with flags and gay devices, and leaved out like June with evergreen wreaths and festoons. City Hall, as the official headquarters of the Committee, was the point of greatest attraction. For days the great hall has been swarming with ladies and their male assistants, all busy as bees, and as busy birds in work almost as pretty. Hour by hour the motions, devices and ornaments have grown under the busy fingers, shaping themselves into evergreen wreaths and festoons, and all the brilliancy of the starry red, white and blue. Last evening witnessed the conclusion of all the labors, and the decoration of City Hall was displayed. It needs not to be remembered. The exterior of the building is well, though rather sparingly dressed out with flags.

But in the inside of the building that is the crowning achievement. Wreaths, festoons, flags, emblems, mottoes, evergreens, and flowers are wrought into beautiful shapes in all directions. All along the sides of the room, suspended from the points of the projecting gas burners, are hung heavy festoons of evergreens, tastefully looped up with flowers and colored ribbons. These extend also across the end, beside the entrances to the two cog wheels. Over each of these is wrought, and death ensued shortly after the accident. Coroner Clawson held an inquest yesterday afternoon and the jury returned a verdict of accidental death.

The Court House in Holiday Dress.—Sheriff Stewart has been making extended preparations to put the old Court House in proper trim for the grand celebration this evening. He has procured nearly one hundred and fifty Chinese lanterns for the purpose of illumination, and the effect of all this light distributed over the gloomy walls of the great stone mansion on the Hill, will be truly magnificent. DECORATIONS—EVERY WHERE.

The two cities blossomed as the rose yesterday with flags and gay devices, and leaved out like June with evergreen wreaths and festoons. City Hall, as the official headquarters of the Committee, was the point of greatest attraction. For days the great hall has been swarming with ladies and their male assistants, all busy as bees, and as busy birds in work almost as pretty. Hour by hour the motions, devices and ornaments have grown under the busy fingers, shaping themselves into evergreen wreaths and festoons, and all the brilliancy of the starry red, white and blue. Last evening witnessed the conclusion of all the labors, and the decoration of City Hall was displayed. It needs not to be remembered. The exterior of the building is well, though rather sparingly dressed out with flags.

But in the inside of the building that is the crowning achievement. Wreaths, festoons, flags, emblems, mottoes, evergreens, and flowers are wrought into beautiful shapes in all directions. All along the sides of the room, suspended from the points of the projecting gas burners, are hung heavy festoons of evergreens, tastefully looped up with flowers and colored ribbons. These extend also across the end, beside the entrances to the two cog wheels. Over each of these is wrought, and death ensued shortly after the accident. Coroner Clawson held an inquest yesterday afternoon and the jury returned a verdict of accidental death.

The Court House in Holiday Dress.—Sheriff Stewart has been making extended preparations to put the old Court House in proper trim for the grand celebration this evening. He has procured nearly one hundred and fifty Chinese lanterns for the purpose of illumination, and the effect of all this light distributed over the gloomy walls of the great stone mansion on the Hill, will be truly magnificent. Sheriff Stewart deserves the thanks of the people for his public spirit and enterprise in this matter.

Personal.—We had the pleasure of welcoming to our sanctum yesterday Mr. J. M. Burns, the aged Gettysburg hero, who won such rich laurels at the great battle on that bloody field. The old man, though he has numbered three score and fifty years of age, so hale and hearty is his appearance and so lightly does he carry his weight of seventy-three years. He is a delegate to the great Convention and constitutes the whole delegation. We bid him a hearty welcome.

Ladies to the Rescue!—A grand rally of the ladies of Allegheny is requested to be held at an early hour this morning at City Hall, Allegheny, for the purpose of preparing wreaths and decorations for the grand procession to-day. Let every lady attend there. The time is excessively short, and the promptest action must be taken to insure success. The ladies are always prompt in well doing and they surely will not fail now.

Serenaded.—The Philadelphia delegation of the Boys in Blue, marched last evening, accompanied by Collis' Philadelphia Brass Band to Mayor McCarthy's office, upon them the band serenaded the Mayor in splendid style, discoursing a number of airs most melodiously. The Honor responded happily and the incident, altogether, was a most pleasant one.

The Pets to Continue.—The Pets will continue with no poor success last week, will continue during the present week up to Saturday next (Wednesday) night. Entries may be made as late as to-morrow morning at 10 o'clock. Parties desiring to enter pets may be sure to be in season, as after that those entering stock will be required to pay the usual fee.

The Boys in Blue of the second ward held a meeting last evening, at Wilkins Hall, to perfect arrangements for the torch light procession to-night, and a large and enthusiastic meeting. It was resolved to meet this evening at half past five o'clock, at the Second ward school house, corner Lion and Diamond streets.

The Press.—E. A. David, Esq., the polite local correspondent of the Associated Press, and superintendent of the Pittsburgh Telegraph Company, cordially extends to the visiting members of the Press the use of his private office, Telegraph Office, corner Fifth street, Western Union Telegraph Office.

Vacation Rendered.—In the case of Daniel Greene and William Jamieson, indicted for the larceny recently, and convicted, both in the Quarter Sessions and Common Pleas, the jury yesterday returned a verdict of guilty, and the prisoners were remanded for sentence.

Second Ward Boys in Blue.—You are requested to assemble at the school house to-night at half past six o'clock, when the Torch Light Club will assemble at the same point in the Ward.

Torch-Light Procession.—The torch-lights which will be lighted, and carried by the Boys in Blue, during the procession to-night, will be sold at the usual place to-morrow (Wednesday) morning.

The Allegheny County Agricultural Fair—Fifth Day—Night to be Seen, and Things to be Heard—Big Display of Stock—New Entries, &c.

Yesterday was a glorious day for the Fair, and well did the people profit by it. From nine o'clock yesterday morning until late in the afternoon there was a continuous string of foot passengers and vehicles of all descriptions. The receipts must have been large. There were a great many new articles on the ground, and the display of fine stock was much greater than at any time last week. There was but one disappointment, and that was the trotting track. There was a large number of fine horses on the ground ready for a trial of speed, besides the shelties, both under the saddle and in harness and later came the famous race pull of Geo. Evans. The track, however, was dubious, and it was deemed best to postpone the race until to-day, at which time, should the weather keep fine, the race will come off.

Although a number of articles have been withdrawn from the Fair, on account of their liability to damage, still the number of entries far exceeded the withdrawals, and the exhibition, except so far as regards perishable articles, is better than ever. A large number of persons from the country visited the grounds yesterday, and to-day the probabilities are that the Fair will be better than ever.

The new articles on exhibition embrace some of the finest goods in the market, and we shall mention some of them in the course of our remarks. We continue our notices.

STOVES, RANGES, GRATES, &c.

To appear invidious is a thing that should always be avoided in giving notice to matters of real excellence, but we cannot allow the opportunity to pass without saying a word in reference to our friends Graff & Hugus. That their fine display of stoves, grates and ranges are worthy of commendation, we have only to refer to the action of the committees in regard to their wares. They have taken the FIRST PREMIUM on their celebrated Double Oven Parlor Range. This range is certainly one of the best we have yet seen. The ovens, instead of being below as the old style is made, are above the stove top, and are so arranged that the heat can be turned off or on, or, in other words, transferred to suit the variety of cooking that may be desired by a family. The ovens are large, and the baking is all done from the same heat, thereby having a large advantage over the old style of range, which required so much expense to keep it hot. The water back, moreover, is on a new plan, and can either be adapted to the old style of boiler, or to an outside boiler. The stove plates are in the front of the range, thereby having advantage of all the light, which in a basement kitchen is of great advantage, as it saves an immense amount of gas, as we can testify. These are but few of the advantages claimed for this range. As it will be on exhibition today and to-morrow, visitors will have ample opportunity to examine it, and after the Fair it can be seen at 26 and 28 Liberty street.

Next to the Range is their famous Columbia Stove, which also took the first premium, and as our better half has thoroughly examined these stoves with a view to purchasing, we think we may safely say that they are par excellence, the stove for a family. They are of different sizes, and one of their marked peculiarities is that they have a much larger oven according to the size of the stove than any other manufactured. Then again the fire back is so constructed as nearly to make it impossible to burn it out. Again, although giving a great deal of heat, they require but little coal. We have been informed by those who have used them that what is known as the "simmering hole," which contains hot water, and also a cast iron boiler which always gives a supply of hot water where there is no boiler in use, is of great advantage, and in all respects superior to any we have yet examined.

The grate fronts, summer pieces and feaders on exhibition by this house are perfect specimens of artistic beauty and taste, and when it was decided that the FIRST PREMIUM should be awarded them, it was a matter of no surprise. The Premium Self-Feeder is made of mahogany, some with silver plated and some with plain feaders. The tile back grates are an article that has long been needed, and are a convenience that the public at large will appreciate at the first of those who are sitting in front. The material, as our readers are aware is incombustible, and their stock in store not only enables them to fill such orders as may be arranged that the heat can be tempered so as to suit the temperature of the atmosphere, and at night, although an open grate, it can be shaded so as to retain all the heat in the room. We shall refer to the arch again when completed.

We would respectfully tender to our friends of the Press now in our city for the purpose of reporting the proceedings of the Soldiers and Sailors Convention, the free use of our editorial room during their session in the city. We will endeavor to afford writing accommodations for all who may choose to avail themselves of our invitation.

THE CONVENTION.

The Soldiers' and Sailors' Convention, which opened in this city to-day, promises to be a grand success. Delegations began to arrive on Sunday, and from all the lines of railroads centering at this point, there have been constant accessions up to the present time. Doubtless the arrivals this forenoon will be unprecedented. Of course there is difficulty in furnishing suitably for so many guests, but our citizens are evincing a common desire to exercise the rites of hospitality.

Nor is it alone in numbers that the Convention is unusual. In point of personal character and public services, a body more pre-eminently illustrative of this country can not be found on this continent. From the farthest limits of New England, and from the distant West and Northwest, from fields of battle and fortresses which for months was menaced by armed foes, from the decks of their warships, from the dreary confines of private life and all the endearments of home, you fully realize all the hazards of battle, that the Union might be preserved intact, and that liberty be secured to themselves and to all people who now inhabit that land, and who shall inhabit it for ages to come. With unrivaled heroism they beat down Treason on the field of battle, and disarmed the Traitors. But when they thought the end they aimed at was fully accomplished, they found that treachery in the administration was depriving the country of the just fruits of their unbounded sacrifices. But under the lustre pictures an attempt was making to give the people many of the substantial results of victory, but under a completely new relation to political power, and due to their exertions, that power a dilapidated, were capable of securing such a settlement of the national complications as was demanded by the strongest considerations of justice and patriotism. From the nature of such an appeal the town taken to the arena of discussion and these national champions are here to meet it.

There is no mistaking the temper or determination of these men. They feel that having conquered the rebellion the government ought to dictate such terms of reconstruction as will tend to "make treason odious," as will compel the leaders of the revolt to "take back seats," and as will furnish indubitable guarantees for the future. These men fought for the Union; but not for a Union in which it is possible for confessed rebels to wear the highest honors and to dominate in the national councils. Having done their work well, and at vast cost, they do not mean, if they can help it, to run the risk of having it to do over again. The eyes of the whole country are fixed on their deliberations here, and no loyal heart will be disappointed in what they do.

CASTE AND PREJUDICE.

In every country on the globe, where the population is numerous, caste prevails in some phase. In Hindoostan society is separated into some half dozen classes or castes divided one from another by horizontal lines rigidly fixed by custom, religion and laws—the Brahmins at the top, the Parias at the bottom. None can cross these lines upwards, and none can descend from the first to the second, or from the second to the third, and so on; but if a man or a woman loses caste at all, he or she tumbles at once to the bottom of the scale. In such a state of society there can of course be no freedom, no progress, and very little security or happiness. When Christianity is brought to bear upon this wretched and benighted people, its first conflict is with this chronic abomination.

When the Redeemer, the great Emancipator of the race, came into the world, he found pretty much the same thing existing among the Jews. The Scribes and Pharisees, with the priesthood, constituted the upper class, while below them in social status were the publicans and sinners, and the common people. Pride and prejudice on the part of the former built up a high wall between themselves and those they esteemed their inferiors in sanctity and social position. It was similar in many respects to the prejudice felt by some of our people toward the colored folk, except that it had more reason at the bottom of it, and could have made a better defence if assailed. It was based, not upon outside complexion, but upon supposed inward sanctity and worth, and therefore real superiority. The aristocratic class, although really worse than the classes below them—infinite wisdom being the judge—imagined themselves to be far better morally; and it was this delusion that inflated them with pride. Our Saviour attacked this social abuse, and greatly offended the superior caste by mingling freely with the despised classes, both socially and as a teacher. The result was he was fiercely denounced as "the friend of publicans and sinners." Such conduct was quite as offensive in the eyes of these lordly people as would be the conduct of a man who should, in this country, mingle freely with colored people, and even eat with them when occasion required. But he went further, and severely denounced the haughty classes for their cooling and cordial towards their brethren of inferior rank and position, and wherever the principles were received and became the law of life, this abomination totally ceased. All became brethren and equals, both in religious and social life. True, among them there was no difference in the color of the skin; or, at least, that had nothing to do with social distinctions among these ancient classes.

Social life always regulates itself. Neither constitutions nor statutes have anything to do with it. We may give the negro the ballot and make him eligible to office, yet his social standing will be pretty much the same as it would be were these privileges withheld. It is so among white men. We meet men at the places of election, and mingle our ballots with theirs, that we would never think of inviting to our parlors; and even in the halls of legislation we may mingle with men that we would by no means accept or acknowledge as social equals and friends.

When it is proposed to confer upon colored men the same rights and privileges as citizens that we ourselves enjoy, the hue and cry is raised that this is social equality, or that it is an attempt to force the negro upon the white man as an equal. But the man who cannot see that this proposition does not touch the question of social equality at all is so debased in an intermingling that either he would have to rise, or the average negro would have to sink in order to reach the point of intellectual equality.

The lower men sink in the intellectual and moral scale the stronger are their race prejudices. This fact is as manifest in the United States as it is in Hindoostan, and it is equally true that the meanest and most selfish men are the more they hate and despise the class which they suppose to be immediately below them, which, with us, happens to be the African race. By this rule we may estimate the moral status of the party who are trying to elect Mr. Cochran, and who rely upon this low, ungenerous, unchristian prejudice to help them along more than they do upon anything else. But it is folly to reason with men whose moral sense is so debased that in order to carry their honest appeal to the most senseless and stupid prejudice that ever found lodgment in the human heart, and of all demagogues he is the meanest and the lowest, who, in his harangues to the people, or in the columns of a public journal, labors to intensify this barbarous and detestable feeling. In the late New Orleans massacre we see its legitimate fruits.

AN AGGRIEVED AFRICAN.

When the President reached Mount a few miles out of this city, a negro, and in a venerable mule, rode up to the side of the car, and, trying to shake hands with General GRANT, said:

"I kind was struck with a view of the car, and to hab a word wid you. I'se a poor old nigger, but I'se got a heap of feelin' in me. I'se been driven from my home by de rebels, and I'se got to live on de Union side of de line. I'se been a Union man from de beginning, and I'se got a right to be. I'se been driven off my land, and I'se got a right to it. I'se been driven off my land, and I'se got a right to it. I'se been driven off my land, and I'se got a right to it

(ADDITIONAL LOCAL NEWS ON FIRST PAGE.)

Singular Case.

Not long since we had an agonized mother here from Ohio, searching for her lost child. Now we hear of a child, also in Ohio, searching for her lost parents. It is stated that a little girl, named Grimes, aged about fourteen years, is at present residing in the family of Peter Dean, Esq., Jeromeville, Ashland county, Ohio, who is anxious to learn something in regard to her parents, whom she supposes resides in the vicinity of Pittsburgh. The child states that about four or five years ago, she was stolen by a band of gypsies, who were encamped near her father's residence, and that since that time she has been concealed in the wagons belonging to the band, and not allowed out of their sight on any occasion. Some few weeks ago the band was in the vicinity of Ashland, Ohio, and she was sent into town for some provisions. She returned to camp with her purchases, but on being sent a second time, she made her escape, and found shelter in Mr. Dean's family. She says her father's name is Samuel Grimes, and she distinctly remembers that he carried vegetables and fruit to the Pittsburgh market for sale. She further states that at the time of her abduction she was driving home the cows from pasture, her younger brother accompanying her. Her parents at the time were on a visit to Fort Wayne, Indiana. Any information respecting the little girl may be obtained by addressing Peter Dean, Esq., Jeromeville, Ashland county, Ohio.

A very pretty romance this would make whether it is true or not.

Pittsburgh, Allegheny and Manchester Passenger Railway Company.

This Company has its Main Trunk line and the Reserve street, and Troy Hill branches all completed; most of the line, with double track. The several lines are also well provided with running stock. The cars, twenty-one in number, are all, except those on Rebecca street, spacious double enders, and are all run strictly on time. The conductors are efficient and courteous. The horses and mules have been well selected for power and action, without regard to cost, and the arrangements and workings of this Company's lines to Wood Run, via Western Avenue and Rebecca street; and to Troy Hill via Ohio street, are neatly conceived, and evince the energy and skill of a master mind, and will no doubt be abundantly remunerated in the liberal patronage of the populous districts, whose convenience is subserved.

The length of all the Company's tracks is 21,215 feet, or 5.01 miles.

The Main Line from the office in St. Clair street to Wood's Run is 19,419 feet.

Howes' Great European Circus.

Despite the great excitement on the Convention of the Boys in Blue, the near advent of this great Circus combination is not lost sight of, and thousands have made up their minds to avail themselves of this opportunity of visiting this popular and attractive establishment. It is needless to say that the afternoon, on the Diamond, in Allegheny City, and will continue during two performances daily, for four days. The fine grand street procession, which will eclipse in splendor and magnificence, any similar attempt ever made here, will take place on Wednesday morning, in Allegheny City. On Thursday, the parade will take place on this side of the river.

More About Sweitzer Hall.—There seems to be no end to the left-handed operations that are transacted in Sweitzer's Hall. On Saturday an Indian named Andrew Shittercr, visited the Hall for the purpose of taking a drink of beer. He carried a buckskin purse valued at about sixty dollars, which he placed on a chair, and walked up to the bar to take a drink. He remained at the bar somewhat longer than he at first expected, and on returning to the chair for his music box, found that it had disappeared. A search was made, but no traces of the missing article could be found. The matter was placed in the hands of Alderman Taylor, yesterday, and is being investigated.

Discharged.—Yesterday morning Mitchell Reagan, formerly of the night police in this city, appeared before Alderman Strain and made an information against J. Heimgood, charging him with assault and battery. Reagan alleges that while in a saloon on Pennsylvania avenue, where Heimgood was the bartender, said that Reagan could not make an arrest in that district, and he was a policeman, and struck him. A warrant was issued and the accused arrested, but after a hearing was discharged on the payment of the costs.

Attention.—We desire to call the attention of our readers to the advertisement, in another column, of Mr. R. B. Norris, Merchant Tailor, at 75 Federal street, Allegheny. Mr. Norris has a large and excellent stock of fine woolens for fall and winter wear. The time approaches when changes must be made. EARLY TELEGRAMS.

A Swindling Paymaster—Secretary Seward Recovering—Pollard to Fight a Duel—Camps Convalescent and Disinfection.

New York, September 24.—A Herald's Washington special says: It has transpired that a United States Paymaster of the regular army, late chief of an important district, has stolen a very large amount of coupons attached to seven-thirties, cutting them off previous to paying them out to the troops of his district. The Paymaster held the bonds back until the January interest accrued, distributing them throughout several remote States minus the coupon adjuncts, which he feloniously retained for his own profit and gain. It is understood proceedings have been instituted against him at Washington, and that but little time can elapse before he will be fully apprised of the [illegible] of his peculations.

The Herald's special says: Secretary Seward is nearly well enough to go to Watkins Glen Tuesday, and being helped into one of the easy chairs, held a conversation of half an hour with the President, Attorney General Stanberry, and Secretary McCulloch, for the first time since he was injured. His articulation is very imperfect, terribly debilitated, and in appearance ten years older than the morning he started upon the fatal carriage ride. Assistant Secretary Seward, receiving the following reply he is directed to forward to-day, as a telegram, which is to set at rest all anxiety on the part of the public: Dr. Norris thinks that in a few days he will be able to resume his official duties.

A Washington special says: McClelland, editor of the Intelligencer, having been posted as a coward, by John Tyler, son of the ex-President, a duel has been arranged to settle the matter.

The Herald's Washington special says: Camps Convalescent and Disinfection, names familiar to thousands who took part in the late struggle for the perpetuation of the Union, have grown into as important features in the life of the nation as that of the Government authorities manifest a disposition to retain them as permanent to resound the wide world over. Shorn of their meagre ho pitalities, when in the future they may visit them, of the days when they congregated there in the character of convalescents, straggle s, or fever boiled and Bakers, by converting them into a depot for the reception of negro recruits for the regular army. Already very nearly a regiment of colored troops are quartered there.

Destructive Fire in New York—Burning of a Tenement Building—Five Persons Burned to Death.

New York, September 24.—The four story tenement house, No. 18 Avenue C, on the corner of Thirteenth street, was destroyed by fire yesterday morning about one o'clock. The family of Cornelius Rattiger, consisting of himself, his wife, and three daughters, occupied the entire second floor, and Rattiger was occupying the third story, and fearing to leap from the windows were all burned to death. They were found lying together in one room and their remains had to be put in a crate. Another family of five persons, named Hartz, leaned from the fourth story—a bed being held below for them to alight upon—and from them, the father, Philip Hartz, and a son, Edward Hartz, missing the bed in their fall, were so severely injured that their lives are despaired of. All of the rest escaped without injury. The damage to the building is about $5,000, and the household effects of all the inmates were destroyed.

The Coroner, on the investigation over the bodies of the victims, leads to the conclusion that the fire was the work of an incendiary, and a reward of one thousand dollars is offered for the detection.

Rumors of a Riot in New Orleans Groundless.

New York, Sept. 24.—A Tribune New Orleans special dispatch in the report of the Second colored Republican Convention, which assembled on the 23d inst., says: Some forty colored delegates had assembled in the vicinity of the encampment where firemen were being instructed, and several of them were being induced by white men to visit improper places and swindling them out of their money. The officers of the convention, sometime for the welfare of their colored brethren, requested the white men present to have the same removed, and this request had been torpedoed into a ridiculous statement that the police were called on to protect the delegates, which is false. It is quite evident, when all things are considered, that no set of officers were ever more careful of the comfort and respectability of a convention than the present, and no excitement could have existed to a more orderly and quiet manner than has since its arrival in the city.

Italian Matters.

New York, September 24.—The Stephens headquarters have been the recipients of numerous congratulations from Hungarians, Poles and French refugees, who know and respect the value of Thaddeus. A meeting of the Irish Fenian Brotherhood was held yesterday, when resolutions favoring the early commencement of the war in Ireland, was passed. Stephens, Kelly, Gleason, and others addressed the meeting. Gleason is expected to return to Ireland almost immediately.

Suicides in New York.

New York, September 24.—Mrs. Elizabeth Mosley, who lived at No. 9 Jones street, committed suicide by drowning herself in the East river, yesterday morning.

A woman named Catherine Rusche committed suicide at Hoboken on Saturday evening by hanging herself with a clothesline.

New York Cholera Report.

New York, September 24.—The number of cholera cases reported in this city exceeds that of the day before, but there is no certain indication that the disease is abating. Five cases were reported in this city yesterday, and eight in Brooklyn, making thirteen in all, showing an increase in Brooklyn.

Death of Hon. John Moore.

Boston, September 24.—Hon. John Moore, of Springfield, Illinois, died in the City Hospital yesterday, where he had been under treatment for several months for a severe injury. He was a prominent lawyer.

CITY AND SUBURBAN.

LOCAL NEWS ON FIRST AND THIRD PAGES.

Mass Meeting in Allegheny.

A meeting of the Union Republicans was held last evening in the city of Allegheny. The meeting was organized by the election of the following officers:

President—T. M. Marshall, Esq.

Vice-Presidents—A. Cameron, Esq., A. Davidson, Esq., General W. Robinson, Jr., Hon. Jno. Morrison, Hon. James L. Graham, Wm. Porter, Esq.

General Walter Harriman was introduced and came forward amid a perfect storm of applause, and after some prefatory remarks, he went on to say: Fellow-citizens, where should we have been to-day if the democratic party had been successful at the Conference would have been made a success, and the Union would have been destroyed. A wail of despair went through the South when Abraham Lincoln was elected. General Harriman then went on to say that if it would be any satisfaction to our democratic friends he would tell them that by their opposition they added four years to the war, and that not many thousands of our brave boys in blue to seek a bloody grave, but you, who embarrassed the government, have had your day, and now we will have ours. In their day they said you cannot conquer the South; Lee is the best general in the world," but now they hold their tongues, yes, they grin and bear it. I intend now to speak to you about the late Union Democratic Convention, the Johnson Louisville Convention.

But before coming to that Convention I would ask you, what is there in it to excite alarm? Nothing. You remember that the raising of our immense armies was thought to be impossible, and I ask what is there in the present to excite alarm? We do not intend to surrender the country to any enemy. We believe that the work of reconstruction is for loyal men, not traitors. Treason must be made odious" and not respectable. The rebels think if a great landslip in favor of them in Congress, that I Ask could we not have something to say about it when they may come back again after fighting four years against us. They shall not be admitted until two-thirds of Congress call for them. The earth will still revolve in its orbit if even there are not a few blustering rebels blowing in Congress. (Cheers.) The Government has been lenient enough to them. I would have hanged Jeff. Davis and others shortly after the Rebellion, and have put away for life Lee, Mason and others. A word to our soldiers: Do not to forget all the sacrifices they made, and surrender the S. cret service into the hands of the enemy. No, down with the traitors and with the sixth. (Applause.) The general proceeded to speak of the late New York convention. What a sweet convention as regards unity, harmony, &c. Yes, so united, for everything was carried out in accordance with the old Democratic motto from Washington. Then President Johnson has the blasphemy to say: "I am for the Union." (Applause.) I will not say more of the late convention, but will only call your attention to the deafening shouts of victory. Yes, Frederick Johnson, of Maryland, was elected and sound and more. It will be a victory for the country. It will awaken great joy among the people. You have a right to be proud for you have been faithful among the faithless. All hail, I say, to the glorious day and likewise to the men and women who stood by the country in her hour of danger. General Harriman here concluded amid deafening cheers and shouts of a most deafening description.

The Allegheny glee club sung some appropriate pieces for the occasion. Mr. Thomas Marshall, Esq., occupied the attention of the audience for about 30 minutes. He commenced by asking if any body in the crowd wished to make a speech, as calls had been made for him, but finding that there were no persons inclined to respond to his call, he immediately took off his coat and set vigorously to work. During the course of his speech he was frequently interrupted several times by the band from the Democratic party playing, rather too near to be pleasant, but he stuck to them and drowned their music by the power of his voice. He next referred to Doolittle's speech. He then produced a copy of the Democratic platform and commenced reading it. He said that when he had spent all, he began to reflect, and at last came to the conclusion that he would return to his father. He said that when he came back he did not ask to be made a son again—he did not ask to have the fatted calf killed in honor of his return, but he said "Thank you as a servant." He said that he did not wish to come back, let them come back as the Prodigal Son, and we will receive them. Let them come as the Prodigal Son, and not a man shall not come into congress, but the garments you can smell the blood of your murdered brother. I have no doubt of the October election. Every one of you must know that he is a dead horse, and they are only waiting to bury him. Mr. Marshall, in conclusion, urged all loyal people to unite and rebuke the traitors, and if they did not only a tallow candle to light up at the window. The speaker, after proposing three cheers for Grant, Wade and Harriman, retired amidst hearty applause. Immediately after Mr. Marshall's address Messrs. Smith & Cox's celebrated brass band played during the evening.

Meeting of Councils.

A regular meeting of the City Councils was held last evening in City Buildings.

Select Council—Present: Messrs. Barclay, Brown, Coffin, Gallagher, Hay, Irwin, Morrison, Nowlin, Phillips, Rea, Shaler, White and President Lambert—13.

Mr. Phillips introduced an ordinance providing for a change in the place of holding elections in the Fourth ward, from the corner of Fifth and Smithfield, to the house of Addy Williams, on the corner of Fifth and Smithfield street. Read the third time and passed.

A petition was read from S. M. Kier, asking for the privilege of erecting a derrick to be run upon his lot from premises of Mr. Miller in the Sixth ward. Read and accepted.

Mr. Gallagher offered the following, which was adopted:
